ARE YOUR LEGAL AFFAIRS IN ORDER?

Rankin Nathan Lawyers believes that everyone should know what is involved in properly managing their legal affairs. Many people are unaware of the need to have certain legal documents in place in order to avoid problems that may arise later in our lives or sometimes suddenly as a result of accidents. Most people are aware of the significance of a Will, but many people do not understand the function and importance of an Enduring Power of Attorney and a Guardianship Appointment. Estate planning is much more than simply having a Will in place.

A half hour appointment with an experienced estate planning lawyer can often clarify what legal documents are required and advice can be given, which may potentially save thousands of dollars in probate costs.

By reviewing your affairs you may not only save money, you may put in place measures which will give you peace of mind and also save your family members and loved ones from spending a lot of time, money and effort in trying to sort out a situation that could easily have been avoided by planning ahead.

Rankin Nathan Lawyers has been serving clients in legal matters for over 100 years. We provide legal services to hospitals, churches and aged care facilities and are very experienced in dealing with legal issues that confront families, particularly in the estate planning area. Simon Cotterill, Partner and Andrew Sheeley, Solicitor take instructions in this important area and are available to discuss your requirements at any time. Contact our estate planning team on 1300 727 813.

Rankin Nathan is also available at no charge, to have an experienced solicitor present information seminars for groups of 20 or more attendees. If you would like Rankin Nathan Lawyers to visit your community group, club, or organisation, please call 1300 727 813.
